system available longer, particularly from Congressional users. "Seven-day weeks are fairly common for Members and their staff," explained Mr. Nugent, "and when they're working extra hours to meet a deadline, that's the very time they require extra computer support rather than less. The new schedule also reflects the recognition of SCORPIO as a basic and important tool of reference work."

The new 85-hour-per-week schedule calls for Monday through Friday service from 7 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. If neither house is in session, Saturday and holiday hours will be 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday service from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Special service from 8:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. will be provided on those weekends and holidays when either house is in session.

AV SECTION USING REVISED AACR

The Audiovisual Section of the Descriptive Cataloging Division started applying the rules in the revised Chapter 12 of the Anglo-American Cataloging Rules on March 3. Although the rules have been expanded to cover instructional materials, Library of Congress cataloging will still be limited to motion pictures, filmstrips, slide sets, and sets of transparencies. Video recordings distributed by the National Audiovisual Center will also be included.

The implementation of the revised rules has necessitated revising Films: a MARC Format, preparing a manual for use by the MARC Editorial Division, and making changes in the programming in the Cataloging Distribution Service Division. Printed cards and MARC tapes will not be available before May; these records will appear in the 1976 annual cumulation of Films and Other Materials for Projection.

LIBRARY WINS GRAPHICS AWARD

RÁKÓCZI EXHIBIT OPENS APRIL 1

The tercentenary of the birth of Prince Francis Rákóczi II (March 27, 1676-April 8, 1735), Hungarian leader in his nation's struggle for liberty and independence 1703-1711, will be commemorated in a showcase exhibit opening next week in the Slavic Room.

The selection of books and other illustrative materials includes an original copy of the five-volume Histoire des revolutions de Hongrie, où l'on donne une idée juste de son legitime gouvernement (La Hague, chez Jean Neaulme, 1739) which was edited by Rákóczi's secretary, the Abbé Domnok Brenner, with contributions by the prince himself. A copy of this work is listed among the original holdings of the library of Thomas Jefferson. Jefferson is known to have made extensive studies of the constitutions and national liberation movements of the European nations.

The exhibit, located in Room G147 on the Ground Floor of the Main Building, will remain on view through June 30. Slavic Room hours are 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and 1 to 5 p.m. Sundays and holidays.

EXHIBIT MARKS 25TH ANNIVERSARY OF WHITTALL POETRY SERIES

Twenty-five years ago, Gertrude Clarke Whittall presented to the Library of Congress an initial gift of $100,000 to establish a "truly representative poetry center . . . for the development of the appreciation of poetry in this country." The original manuscript of this letter, dated November 27, 1950, and manuscripts from the Gertrude Clarke Whittall Collection of Literary Manuscripts in the Library of Congress will be on display in the Manuscript Division Reading Room from April through June to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the Whittall literary programs. Memorabilia in the form of printed programs, brochures of printed lectures, and photographs of Mrs. Whittall, performers, and Library officials will also be on display.

On April 23, 1951, the Poetry Room, decorated and furnished by Mrs. Whittall, was opened with an informal reception. Fellows of the Library of Congress in American Letters were represented by Mrs. Francis Biddle and Conrad Aiken, Consultant in Poetry in 1950-52.

The first program presented under the auspices of the Library of Congress Poetry Fund established by Mrs. Whittall followed on May 1 of that year with a reading by Burgess Meredith from the poems of Edwin Arlington Robinson; Cleanth Brooks provided a commentary on Robinson's poetry. Since that time, hundreds of poets, novelists, and theatrical personalities have appeared on the stage of the Coolidge Auditorium in poetry readings, critical discussions, dramatic readings, presentations of Shakespearean plays, and national and international symposia. The Library therefore has partially, if not fully, fulfilled Mrs. Whittall's wish that it become a truly representative poetry center, and, with its literary programs and concerts, the Library has played a significant role in the diffusion of the arts in the National Capital.

Robert Frost wrote the poem "Away" for Mrs. Whittall and dedicated the manuscript to her in December 1958, during his term of office as Consultant in Poetry in English. Written beside the poem is the dedicatory statement, "To Gertrude Clarke Whittall who has given us all so much." The poet acknowledged receipt of Mrs. Whittall's handwritten note thanking him for his page of "Frost Wizardry" and suggested that her note remain with the manuscript of his poem. Both notes and the holograph poem will be on exhibit.

Some of Mrs. Whittall's favorite poets are represented in the exhibit. All of the manuscripts listed were given to the Library by Mrs. Whittall or were purchased with funds provided by her, as indicated: A. E. Housman—manuscript poem "R.L.S." (among 302 Housman manuscripts presented to the Library in 1940); E. A. Robinson—final draft of "Tristram," inscribed and signed in ink, 1926 (purchased in 1949); Emily Dickinson—"The grass so little has to do," early 1860 (received in 1956); Edna St. Vincent Millay—autograph first draft of "The Rabbit" (received in 1953); Edgar Allan Poe—"To Marie Louise" (received in 1953); Percy Bysshe Shelley (and his wife Mary Wollstonecraft Shelley)—manuscript pieces, 1814-22 (received in 1941); Eugene Field—"Over the Hills and Far Away," holograph (purchased in 1944); and Christina Rossetti—"The Months. A Pageant," a masque, with corrections in the poet's hand and autographed (received in 1952).

In addition to the Whittall Collection of Literary Manuscripts founded in 1960, there exists in the Library the Gertrude Clarke Whittall Foundation Collection of music manuscripts and literary manuscripts of musicians.

On May 3, the Library will commemorate the 25th anniversary of the Gertrude Clarke Whittall literary programs with a reading by actor Burgess Meredith, who appeared on the first Whittall program, together with a lecture on Mrs. Whittall and her impact by Roy P. Basler, administrative director of the programs from 1952 until he retired from the Library in December 1974. The May 3 program will be open to the public.

"Pryderi and His Pigs," a company of Welsh actors, presented an 18th century style Welsh tapestry to the Library before a performance in the Coolidge Auditorium on March 1, St. David's Day. Pictured with the gift are (from the left) actors Ray Handy, Olwen Rees, Eilian Wyn, Christine Pritchard, their American representative Ann Cowie, and Angus McDermid, Washington representative for BBC radio, who made the presentation to the Acting Librarian of Congress.

The tapestry was presented on behalf of the Wales Tourist Board as a bicentennial commemoration of the historic link between the peoples of Wales and the United States.

RETIREMENTS

Eric Herzka, an assistant catalog editor in the National Union Catalog Publication Project, retired February 27 after almost 25 years of Government service, most of which was spent at the Library of Congress.

Mr. Herzka, a native of Vienna, Austria, holds a doctor of laws degree from the University of Vienna and a B.S. in Library Science from Columbia University. Before joining the National Union Catalog Publication staff in 1967, he served as head of the Pre-1952 Imprints Section, Union Catalog Division.

Mr. Herzka brought to the Library previous experience gained at the United Nations Library, Hunter College, and the New York State Law Library, Albany.

The staff of the National Union Catalog Publication Project honored Mr. Herzka and his dedication to the project with a farewell luncheon and gift.

Mr. Palic obtained his secondary education in his native country of Czechoslovakia and in Dijon, France. He received the degree of bachelier ès lettres from the University of Dijon and the degree of juris doctor at the Comenius University of Bratislava, Czechoslovakia. After some graduate work in international relations and political science, he joined the Czechoslovakian foreign service, in which he held various staff positions between 1932 and 1949, including assignments to the embassies in Paris and Washington, D.C.

Since assuming the latter position, his efforts have been devoted to the preparation of Government Publications: A Guide to Bibliographic Tools and Government Organization Manuals: A Bibliography. These two major works, which will be published later this year, represent an important contribution to a difficult and increasingly complex field, and will aid considerably the tasks of document librarians in this country and elsewhere.

On February 27, Mr. Palic was honored with a reception in the Whittall Pavilion, where his friends and associates paid tribute to the substantial achievements of his long career.
